

Elisabeth has taught theatre and movement for over thirty years in schools, arts centers, and community settings. She currently is the drama specialist at Nichols Middle School in Evanston, Illinois. She was a writer for the theatre section of the National Core Arts Standards and served on the Steering and Advisory committee and as a writer for the new Illinois Theatre Standards. She chaired the Illinois Theatre in Our Schools Conference in 2015 and 2016. She has received the Illinois Theatre Association 2016 Award for Excellence in Creative Drama, AATE Creative Drama Award, and The Office Max Teacher of the year Award. She is currently working with a group of representatives from various fine arts organizations to develop an Administrators Academy to help principals learn to evaluate fine arts teachers for the Illinois State Board of Education. In addition she serving on the committee to review licensure testing for theatre teachers across Illinois.